Bryter Water Damage Restoration of North Houston, a company based in Houston, TX, wants people to know that along with their water remediation services, they also provide removal of mold. They can provide 24/7 emergency services for mold inspection, remediation, and removal services through their rapid response teams. Flooding in the home or any building due to a storm or a water leak results into a lot of water that can cause serious damage to ceilings, drywall, and the structural components of the home. It is important to note that mold growth can initiate within 48 hours after water has infiltrated the property.

John Bryter from Bryter Water Damage Restoration of Raleigh says, ?Mold growth and damage can be devastating for homeowners, resulting from leaking faucets, broken water heaters, and flooding. Excessive water can cause health hazards, costly damage to your home?s structure if it is not addressed immediately. Each mold damage situation is unique and requires a different solution. However, the general mold remediation process remains the same. Learn more about our mold remediation process on our website.?

The team of professionals at Bryter Water Damage Restoration of North Houston are well equipped with the training, experience, and expertise in mold removal for the home or office. The remediation process has the purpose of bringing the mold levels back to their original levels. The growth of mold is primarily caused by excessive moisture resulting from water damage. Thus, the first step to take would be to determine where the water or moisture is coming from and then get rid of that source. The next step would be for the mold remediation specialists to begin the mold cleanup by applying professional methods. The result is the home or office becomes safer and indoor air quality improves.

Mold growth is not just a nuisance to families and many people. They can blacken or discolor important parts of the home or building, such as the ceilings, walls, and floors. But more importantly, mold can also have a severe impact on the health of people, particularly those who are suffering from allergies and asthma. Mold produces microspores and these are lifted into the air inside the home or office. When these are breathed in, they can irritate the lungs and cause allergies and asthma.

It may be a good idea to enlist the assistance of mold specialists because they know how to properly remove the mold while preventing the microspores from getting to the other rooms of the home or office. Also, those who are not properly trained can unwittingly cause the microspores to spread all over the home of office. These can be avoided by getting the help of the mold remediation specialists.

Mold inspectors will check the home or office to find out the source and the extent of the mold growth. Next, the mold remediation experts will apply the best techniques for removing the mold. This is must be done as early as possible because the situation worsens over time.

Bryter Water Damage Restoration was established after their team has already been providing for several years water damage remediation services in several counties in North Carolina, such as Pender County, Carteret County, Horry County, Onslow County, and Brunswick County, and in the key cities of Carolina Beach, Wilmington, Moorehead, and Wrightsville Beach.
