For the buyers, the first step would be to sign an Intend to Purchase (ITP) contract to show that they are really serious. Propertia Bali will then approach the seller with the offer to purchase, and if the seller accepts, and ITP contract will be signed by both parties. The next step would be for the buyer to choose a notary. The notary fee usually ranges from 0.8 to 1 percent of the selling price. The notary draws a more detailed sales and purchase agreement in English and Indonesian. And then the buyer transfers the agreed upon deposit, which is typically 10 percent of the selling price, and this is held in the notary escrow account. Next, the buyer conducts due diligence on the property, which is performed by the selected notaries. This will usually take two to three weeks. The notary will hold the land certificates or deeds in escrow until full payment has been made.
