November 03, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

The latest Brain enhancer supplements, being offered by 3rd Rock Products Ltd have provided new hope to those who suffer from the dreaded caffeine crash. The company just released a Nootropics product called Steady Focus, which may provide users with the advanced alertness of coffee with the added benefit of brain boosting focus.

One of the main concerns of 3rd Rock Products is to take a look at natural brain enhancers vs. pharmaceutical drugs. Steady Focus offers 60 capsules created from all natural and vegetarian ingredients, giving consumers the ability to skip the pharmaceuticals and look to a more natural supplement instead.

Brain enhancer supplements use various ingredients, mostly natural, in order to offer users the boost of energy they need in a more subtle and non-jittery way. Steady Focus, for example uses only two ingredients inside their supplement; these are caffeine and L-Theanine. The external shell is produced using rice flour. The company says the following regarding their nootropic blend: "If you adhere to the prescribed dosage, you can expect Steady Focus to do what it promises, give you alertness, energy, focus, and clarity. In clinical studies, a combination of L-Theanine with Caffeine (100mg each) is noted to be synergistic in promoting cognition and attention."

Natural Brain Enhancers are created to produce clarity and alertness in those who use them. According to 3rd Rock products, this can be beneficial during working hours, sport activities, or at home with the family. The company allows consumers to see what other shoppers are saying about this product through their online retail channel. One satisfied customer writes: "This is my new magical housework pill. Seriously - I'm popping one of these babies every night. I'm so impressed with how well these actually work. I highly recommend these if you need some focused energy."

For more information on Nootropics, Steady Focus, and 3rd Rock Products, the company invites all current and potential consumers to visit them online through their sales portal. Here customers can read about the supplements, contact the company, or make a purchase. Steady Focus sells for the current sale price of $19.97, and includes a 100% money back guarantee.
