Bryter Water Damage Restoration of North Houston, which is based in Houston, Texas, wants to emphasize that aside from water remediation services, they also provide mold removal and remediation services. Flooding due to strong rains, water leaks and broken pipes can cause significant damage to various parts of the home, including valuable belongings. But aside from the weakening of structural elements of the home, mold growth and damage can also occur within just 48 hours after water has intruded into the home. Mold can cause health problems, such as allergies, respiratory problems, and asthma.

Bryter from Bryter Water Damage Restoration of North Houston says, ?Mold can be a serious nuisance. Mold can blacken grout lines in showers, discolor drywall, show up as dark spots on sidings, darken decks and grow on damp wood. It can also be dangerous for your health. Microspores from mold can cause allergies, runny noses and sneezing as well as irritation and even dangerous odors. Because of the extent of water damage due to flooding, the mold growth will likely be more extensive and the resulting health problems more serious. That is why we offer emergency services to get rid of the water as early as possible and avoid the onset of mold growth. But if mold growth does occur as a result of the flooding, we are ready to provide mold removal and remediation services.?

Bryter Water Damage Restoration can help homeowners and other property owners with various kinds of emergency problems. These include: burst pipes, sewage cleaning, basement water extraction, backups for drains, hardwood floor drying, toilet overflows, failure of the sump pump, roof and window leaks, and appliance malfunctions. When experiencing water damage, people are advised to remain calm and turn off the main water supply if the cause of the flooding is a burst pipe. And if the flooding is extensive, it is advisable to turn off the electric power supply to avoid electrocution.

Next, it is advisable to request the help of professionals, such as the specialists from Bryter Water Damage Restoration. The team of Bryter experts will bring along specialized equipment that they frequently used for water damage remediation. They will use moisture detection meters to identify all affected areas and then use air movers, dehumidifiers, etc. to get rid of the water and moisture. It may take three to four days to restore the regular moisture level.

And when in need of mold removal Houston residents can depend on the services of Bryter Water Damage Restoration of North Houston. They also offer 24/7 emergency services for mold removal and remediation. Their team experts can visit the property and conduct an inspection to determine the extent of the mold problem. They will also determine the source of the water intrusion if it is not immediately apparent. The next step would be to get rid of the source of water intrusion, such as a leak, and then get rid of the water until the area is dry enough. They will then use advanced equipment to get rid of the mold and the spores to ensure that mold infestations will not occur in the future.

Bryter Water Damage Restoration came into being after their team has been offering water damage remediation services for many years in various counties in North Carolina, including Carteret County, Horry County, Pender County, Brunswick County, and Onslow County, and in the cities of Wilmington, Carolina Beach, Wrightsville Beach, and Moorehead. The water damage to homes and other buildings was often caused by hurricanes and storms that usually pass through the area. Their mission is to help families restore their homes and other personal belongings to their condition before the flooding and to prevent further damage of mold growth and the water weakening the structural parts of the home or building. Later on, the company extended its services to other cities, including Houston, Texas.

When in need of water damage restoration Houston residents can visit the Bryter Water Damage Restoration of North Houston website or contact them through the telephone or via email. They can be contacted 24 hours a day, from Monday to Sunday.
