Supplements for brain function can boost an individual's natural drive, according to 3rd Rock Products, a health product company based out of Laguna Beach, California. Their most prominent supplement to now hit the market, Steady Focus, offers an all-natural and vegetarian alternative to energy drinks and coffee with a mixture of Caffeine and L-Theanine.

Caffeine-based products are usually used by many North Americans as they face their daily routines, but the addition of L-Theanine has been observed to add a calming effect to the supplement, which evens out those sharp jitters and the crash that often follows after taking caffeine on its own.

As far as brain supplements go, this one has proven its success through various customer reviews, leading Steady Focus to reach a majority of 5 star rankings in the company's online sales portal. One such satisfied shopper, Heather F., had the following to say regarding her experience with the pills: "The supplement is a white powder in a clear vegetarian capsule. The only other ingredient listed other than L-Theanine, Caffeine and the capsule is rice flour. The directions say to take one capsule at a time and no more than two a day spaced 5-6 hours apart. Upon taking this supplement I definitely get the kick-start that I was looking for, but I do feel much more focused when compared to how I felt after drinking an energy drink with similar amounts of caffeine. Another point to call out is that I don't feel like I am going to fall asleep in the late morning after the caffeine has left my system. I am very happy with this supplement based on the results that I have had from taking it every morning."

The supplement works by increasing energy while simultaneously calming the body to increase the ability to focus, while boosting natural drive. Based on human clinical trials, the company believes they have found the perfect mixture of natural ingredients to create this effect in a safe and pharmaceutical free method. They stand behind their product with such assurance that they offer a 100% money back guarantee to any customer who isn't satisfied with the results of the supplement.

Each bottle contains 60 capsules, and the company invites new shoppers to leave feedback and reviews so that they can continue their efforts to evolve and create high quality products.
