Natural supplement company, 3rd Rock Products, offers pills that help you focus. The capsules are created using all natural, vegetarian ingredients, particularly rice flour, caffeine, and L-Theanine. Caffeine supplements and caffeinated beverages are a popular method for individuals to control sleepiness, renew energy, and try to enable better focus. However, unwanted side effects of a strictly caffeine-based product are the jitters, anxiety, and a feeling of fatigue, which is known as a crash.

3rd Rock Products had set out to demolish the crash by introducing L-Theanine to the mixture in their focus pills. This allows users to possibly avoid the jittery effects and use the energy offered by caffeine to focus more on tasks at hand. Steady Focus, the brand of supplement offered by the company, does just this, and comes in bottles containing 60 capsules each.

One of the characteristics, which sets Steady Focus apart from alternative brands, is the transparency principle followed by 3rd Rock Products in wanting to provide a more natural approach to energizing the body and mind. The company has stated that they believe Steady Focus is a less pharmaceutical option.

Feedback from consumers who have tried the product has been fairly unanimous, with most ratings falling into the five star category. One such satisfied customer wrote: "It's easier for me to take a capsule than drink three cups of coffee or eight cups of tea or buy an energy shot every day. Besides, the coffee and energy shots wouldn't have the L-Theanine. It's the combination and the right dose that makes this work and it works beautifully. Thirty minutes after taking it, it kicked in and I felt mentally sharper, more alert and could think clearer. It gave me the energy to plow through my day without any jitters. I am thrilled that I found this product."

The company invites all new and current customers to visit them online through their retail channel and leave some feedback. Those who wish to read more about Steady Focus, or see what the product looks like can also do so on the website. 3rd Rock Products encourages new users to try the capsules with a full 100% customer satisfaction guarantee.
