3rd Rock Products, a supplement company based out of Laguna Beach, California is posing an answer on how to improve concentration and memory through the use of their Nootropics product, Steady Focus. The capsules come in bottles of 60 and are made from all natural vegetarian ingredients.

The company believes that Steady Focus could be a more reliable method to renew focus and raise energy levels without the fatigue and crash which is usually brought on through coffee drinking or energy beverages alone. With a combination of caffeine and L-Theanine, 3rd Rock Products backs their supplement in terms of quality with a 100% client satisfaction guarantee. This provides all new and current customer with the safety of a full money back promise should the capsules not meet expectations.

One of the major features of the product is its possibility to improve concentration. Many consumers report feeling a change in their body and mind after taking just one supplement, and are impressed with the way that it tapers off gradually, rather than making them tired. One satisfied shopper explains: "Upon taking this supplement I definitely get the kick-start that I was looking for, but I do feel much more focused when compared to how I felt after drinking an energy drink with similar amounts of caffeine. Another point to call out is that I don't feel like I am going to fall asleep in the late morning after the caffeine has left my system. I am very happy with this supplement based on the results that I have had from taking it every morning."

3rd Rock Products has stated that while many alternative energy boosting products can offer a similar kick start, they fall flat in terms of overall clarity and focus. One of the features of the product which the company is most proud of is the effect that it has not only on the body, but on the mind as well.

For more information on Steady Focus, or to get in contact with the company, they invite consumers to visit them online through their retail page. This offers consumers a glimpse at images of the supplement, packaging, and direct information regarding ingredients and how the capsules work.
