

3rd Rock Products LLC Releases Answers On How To Improve Brain Function

November 03, 2015

November 03, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Supplement and natural health solutions provider, 3rd Rock Products, has offered some insight on how to improve brain function. Steady Focus, which are the capsules sold through the company, may provide a boost of energy that is accompanied with a calmness that allows individuals to not only perk up and enjoy their day but also enhance mental acuity in the process.

Known for its stance on natural alternatives to medical pharmaceuticals, 3rd Rock Products offers their supplements in bottles containing 60 vegetarian, all natural capsules. Currently these brain function pills can be purchased through the company's online sales channel.

To truly answer the question on how to improve brain function, 3rd Rock Products first asks consumers to try the capsule. The mixture of caffeine and L-Theanine has been shown in human clinical trials to give users the same wakefulness sought in coffee and other caffeinated beverages, but with a relaxing agent that takes away the jumpiness and jitters that often accompany caffeine-only products. When this dual sensation reaches the human brain, it is more able to consider everything that is going on and process things individually.

There have been many studies performed on the capabilities and qualities of the caffeine and L-Theanine combination, and 3rd Rock Products stands firmly behind the product with a 100% money back guarantee on any purchase which does not perform to a consumer's standards. In regards to the product and how it has worked personally, one satisfied customer left the following comment on the company's sales portal: "I am a college student and a busy mom. I also have a few home based businesses I run. I was looking for a product that would help me not only with better focus, but also more energy. It is not common to actually find a product that targets both, but this Steady Focus supplement does. I was so happy when I came across this supplement and decided to give it a try. After trying it out a few times, I noticed a major difference, and very quickly. I am more focused than before, and have much more energy than before as well."
