WeHaveCoolStuff has announced the recent launch of their brand new inflatable travel pillow, just in time for the holiday travel season. The company is committed to making sure people are able to be comfortable during any type of travel activity, be it plane, train, or automobile. Full details about the product are available on <http://www.amazon.com/dp/B00U67OH2O>.

"We believe our Globetrotter inflatable travel pillow could be one of the most valuable travel resources anyone could ever have," says Gabrielle Fischer, product development coordinator at WeHaveCoolStuff. "It is designed to give people a level of comfort they simply cannot achieve otherwise on planes, coaches or other types of long journeys. Our inflatable travel pillow, which comes as a set with an eye mask and ear plugs all in an easy carry bag, is really all you need to be comfortable and end a journey rested and refreshed."

The company was keen to point out that it is vital that people think about their comfort during long journeys. Most people are by now aware of the potential dangers of deep vein thrombosis, which is why they wear compression socks or frequently go for a walk to stretch their legs. However, supporting the neck and getting rest is equally important. Comfort and convenience are addressed by all WeHaveCoolStuff products, as can be seen on www.wehavecoolstuff.com/products.

"People overlook the importance of neck support on a long trip. They can get headaches and muscle cramps, leaving them physically uncomfortable," adds Ms. Fischer. "Not just that, but being uncomfortable during a journey makes the journey a lot more stressful. This, in turn, results to not being able to enjoy the destination as much they would want to. Adding stress to a trip is the last thing anyone wants. The Globetrotter Travel Pillow set addresses these issues."

With holiday trips just around the corner and long flights and drives awaiting many travelers, the Globetrotter inflatable travel pillow set has been released just in time. WeHaveCoolStuff has also created a video that explains the ins and outs of the product and why it is so beneficial. The video can be seen on www.wehavecoolstuff.com/travelpillow.
