January 13, 2022 -
OC Partnership presents a new article that analyzes the racial wealth gap in the US. The report, published on OC Partnership's website, was compiled by the company?s sociology experts. The report was released to highlight the economic status disparity in the United States based on race.

There is a huge disparity between black and white Americans regarding wealth. A 2016 Study of Consumer Finances shows that the median white household net worth is $171,000, ten times greater than the median black household net worth of $17,100. The publication analyzes why this wealth gap still exists. The experts in the report explained how these gaps are caused.

According to OC Partnership, the company's experts prepared the report after thorough market research. The purpose of the publication was to analyze a concerning societal issue in the US by shedding light on the racial inequality that still exists. The article analyzed the various factors and aspects of racial inequality in wealth to give a clear understanding of existing racial injustices in the US that need to be addressed. Readers can find the full report by visiting their page; https://www.ocpartnership.net/why-does-the-racial-wealth-gap-exist/. The report found the starkest divides to exist in income and net worth, based on race.

Since its inception, OC Partnership has provided information, research, resources, news, and expert advice on topics ranging from society and health to parenting and disabilities for readers worldwide. The report was published as part of their regular research on societal issues for their readers.

"This report delves into the depths of the racial wealth gap with the hope of creating awareness in society and eliminating discrimination and stereotypes," said Love Howard, the Founder of OC Partnership.
