Dick Shenk of Daphne Alabama Is Helping His Local Neighbors In This Time Of Need, Partnering with AMG and EXTRA

January 31, 2022

January 31, 2022 -
Dick Shenk of Daphne, Alabama has found peace of mind during the Covid pandemic. With 52 years of safety consultation activity, he has an extensive background in auto safety, accident prevention in the workplace, fire protection, and life safety concerns in buildings and the workplace.

According to OSHA, there have been over 20,000 reports of COVID concern in the workplace, and this number continues to rise, each and every day.

Dick Shenk is no rookie, as he has consulted with multiple types of businesses, including retail, wholesale, manufacturing, and petrochemical, throughout the southeastern USA, going on for five decades now.

The reality is, there are a few things people can do to eliminate their risk of exposure to harmful pathogens, germs, and viruses, including the virus that causes Covid 19. Dick first stumbled across a solution in the early 2000s which he shares at www.DicksSolution.com.

One of the things public or private residents can do, is air out their occupied dwelling, by opening windows, as often as possible. According to Dr. Fauci, the best place to eat lunch is outside on an open bench. This is because our earth produces a natural disinfectant, from a mixture of ozone, and natural air exchange.

Keeping people safe, and having peace of mind, is very special to Dick, as he has already helped his local church, located in Alabama. Dick has been protecting people from hazardous and dangerous situations throughout his entire career, and now he gets the pleasure to help people protect themselves, from one of the greatest dangers that our society has ever faced.

Dick has officially partnered up with Ryan Allaire, from AMG and EXTRA publishing, helping churches get protected.
