October 30, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Schollegiate College Prep and Tutoring, a company based in White Lake, MI, will be hosting a free webinar on November 30, 2015 between 7pm and 8pm. Pupils and parents alike are encouraged to register for this free webinar to find out more information about ACT vs the new SAT. This is vital because the state of Michigan has decided to switch from ACT to SAT, and this has left quite a number of people confused. The webinar aims to address the most frequently asked questions.

"After the state of Michigan officially decided to make the switch, my office has been inundated with questions," says Lynette Bennett from Schollegiate College Prep and Tutoring. "Together with Barbara Danielson, who is a leading ACT and SAT tutor, I will be running the free webinar in which the most important questions will all be answered."

During the webinar, people will be told which test their child or student should take. It will also address how they can start to prepare for the test and when they should start this preparation. The differences and similarities between the two tests will also be discussed.

"We really want to encourage everyone to learn more at our free class," adds Lynette Bennett. "We will also examine whether colleges really care which test students take. To demonstrate this, we will cite examples from the University of Michigan, as well as Michigan State University."
