Green Star Plumbing Company Grand Prairie is one of the foremost plumbing experts in its area of Texas. They have well-trained and experienced plumbing techs working for them that have access to all of the latest and best plumbing equipment. A perfect example of this is their use of hydro-jetting machines to unclog drain lines. A procedure that is much less time-consuming and longer-lasting than the traditional method of snaking a clogged drain line open. These are just some of the many benefits of using hydro-jetting to open up a clogged drain line.

A spokesperson for this plumbing contractor, Joseph, says, "We take much pride in being as progressive a plumbing service as possible. That means having state-of-the-art plumbing equipment to resolve the various plumbing issues that our customers ask us for help with. These tools include our modern hydro-jetting machines that can handle even the toughest clogs in both residential and commercial drain lines. They are machines that offer so many advantages over using more traditional methods to get water flowing through a drain line again."

Joseph went on to say that one of the main advantages of hydro-jetting is how effective it is. It can even handle getting tree roots out of sewer drain lines which is no easy task when using a snake. These machines are also much safer than other types of drain unclogging devices. That's because they will not do such things as scratch and crack porcelain toilets or other bathroom or kitchen fixtures. He added that hydro-jetting also is often a quicker solution to opening up clogged drain lines than other more traditional drain unclogging methods; less time on the job results in lower bills to their customers. There also is no digging involved or cutting of pipes to get to clogs that are in hard-to-reach areas. Since hydro-jetting does not require the use of chemicals, it's also one of the most environmentally-friendly ways to unclog a drain line.
