Wax Dynasty Publishes Blog Post Talking About CropBytes, The Metaverse Farming Game

January 25, 2022

Santa Clarita, California - January 25, 2022 -
Wax Dynasty, an online publication that tackles topics such as NFTs, cryptocurrencies, blockchain, and metaverse, has published a new blog post that draws attention to the exciting new innovations and features offered by CropBytes, a 4-year old metaverse farming game. Those interested in finding out more can read the article in its entirety at the link: https://waxdynasty.com/exploring-the-cropbytes-metaverse-a-futuristic-crypto-game-with-real-economics-and-immersive-graphics/.

Farm simulation game CropBytes launched in 2018 and amassed 400,000 organic downloads in a short time. It is an immersive crypto gaming experience that is backed by the enthusiastic participation of a global gaming community. The game?s inclusion of asset ownership allows farm owners to monetize their time investment and exchange the assets that they farm for crypto financial gains. On January 20, 2022, the company launched an upgraded version of CropBytes which had brand new terrain and immersive 3D graphics. After the upgrade, all existing players were able to seamlessly transfer all of their game data to the new version, just as it used to be.

From the onset, the game was built with an emphasis on a stable economy because its creators understood that most NFT games of its type suffer from liquidity crises and asset inflation in the years following their launch. The team behind CropBytes addressed these issues head-on during the development phase of the game.

As a result, today CropBytes offers a lot of special features for its players such as having a balanced economy, real ownership, open-market trading, and utility-based gaming. The company also has big plans for the game?s future such as implementing staking, tokenization, and lending, all of which are designed to broaden the appeal of the game even further. The crux of the current Q1 2022 roadmap is to build a guild economy that allows players to start the game with a proof-of-game concept, a luxury not offered by most other popular NFT games.

CropBytes provides ready-sorted packs of digital assets for purchase, ranging from small, medium to large. Each pack contains a few farm animals, land, seeds, water, and, in the large pack, farming tools. The digital assets can be purchased with either TRX (Tronix) or CBX, the game?s own crypto token. The CBX token is already mineable in the game and it has also been listed on popular exchanges such as ByBit, MEXC, and Uniswap.

The company has also started the mining of the rare Superhero NFT asset in the game. CropBytes superheroes are a set of NFT superhero animals that can be traded and bred with special breed food. Each NFT superhero also has a unique buff to increase the performance of the player?s farm. The original price of each NFT superhero is 18,000 CBX.

The blog post from Wax Dynasty presents an honest review of the game mechanics in which the reviewer praises the variety of the gameplay on offer, the pleasant music and graphics, and the engaging interaction loop that involves performing relaxing activities such as harvesting crops, feeding animals, grinding crops to make feed, and more. The new version also allows the player to zoom in very close to the game map, giving them a good look at their player avatar and the assets that they are currently building and farming.

The game also has a social aspect where players can engage in peer-to-peer superhero combat using their NFT collections of the aforementioned superhero animals. The superheroes can also be traded and bred to generate new superheroes that are a genetic mashup of their parents. Players are also given multiple ways to generate revenue including placing items that they have harvested for sale in an online store or deploying assets such as wind turbines and solar panels to generate energy that can be converted into TRX. The reviewer notes they had a thoroughly enjoyable and satisfying time with the game and they were excited about what the future has in store for it.
