Bronx - Nursing home negligence lawyer Samantha Kucher (<https://www.rrklawgroup.com/nursing-home-negligence-lawyer/>) releases a new article that explains nursing home abuse and how an attorney can help. In the article, the lawyer mentions that there are approximately 1.4 million individuals who live in nursing homes or assisted living environments, and that number is growing as time goes by.

The lawyer adds that nursing homes are supposed to care for elderly and disabled individuals. However, nursing homes abuse and neglect are also growing in numbers these days.

According to attorney Samantha Kucher, "While the purpose of nursing homes is to provide these individuals adequate care with safe and healthy living environments, abuse and neglect have become increasingly more common. If you suspect that a loved one is being abused or neglected in a nursing home or assisted living home setting, it is important to get the experienced legal assistance of a neglect attorney to hold the staff and facility accountable.?

In the article, the lawyer also mentions that with the current aging of people in America and also the rising demand for people going into nursing homes, neglect and abuse have become rampant. The injury attorney adds that "Nearly 1 in 6 individuals aged 60 and older are abused in some form in these community settings in the past year."

Furthermore, the nursing home abuse lawyer lists down what is considered abuse or neglect in a care facility setting. This includes physical abuse or violence, neglect and failure to provide basic needs, emotional, psychological, or verbal abuse, sexual abuse, financial abuse and exploitation, and abandonment.

Attorney Samantha Kucher says, "Most cases of abuse and neglect are caused by the very people who have been entrusted to their care or even by other residents. Unfortunately, many victims of nursing home abuse or neglect are too frightened to report their abusers. This is why it is important to be aware of any signs or indications of abuse or neglect so action can be taken as soon as possible."

Additionally, the nursing home abuse lawyer also explains the difference between nursing home abuse and neglect. She mentions that neglect is usually caused by an unintentional lack of care, whereas nursing home abuse is intentional. However, neglect is not an excuse because it can also be very harmful.

Lastly, the lawyer emphasizes how important it is to seek the help of an experienced lawyer if someone has been a victim of nursing home negligence or abuse. Those who are supposed to be taking care of the elderly or disabled patients must be held responsible for the pain they have caused.
