Mesa, Arizona - February 03, 2022 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Dry Star Restoration is providing the best services for emergency water damage repairs Phoenix, Arizona, has to offer.

There have been numerous news reports all throughout 2021 of flood damage in Arizona. One such recent example is an incident that occurred in Chandler in August 2021 where an explosion that was caused by a gas leak in a nearby building ripped through Chandler Sunset Library. The explosion caused a water main to break and water proceeded to flood the library building, causing significant structural damage and forcing it to remain closed for several months for repairs before it was announced that it will reopen in mid-February 2022.

When the damage doesn't come from man-made systems going awry, there is still the specter of natural weather events making their presence known with rampant property damage and, in some tragic cases, the loss of human life. Case in point, the 2021 monsoon in Arizona was responsible for leaving a trail of destruction in its wake. The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration ranked the 2021 Arizona monsoon as the 7th wettest in the state since 1901. By mid-September, the National Weather Service in Phoenix had issued 247 flash flood warnings. Five people from across the state were confirmed dead during the 2021 season as a result of the flash floods. Picacho State Park reported a wall breach that cost the state upwards of $7.5 million to fix. In Phoenix, Moon Valley Bible Church suffered from a roof collapse, filling its 30,000 square feet area with water up to 5 inches deep.

A spokesperson for Dry Star Restoration talks about the need to be prepared for dealing with unexpected emergencies by saying, "Calamity does not announce itself before arriving and it always seems to strike at the most inopportune time. You can do your best to make sure that your home or commercial building is in good condition and regularly maintained but when you are facing a real emergency, it helps to have a reliable company that you can turn to for quick restoration of your property and valuable assets. Dry Star Restoration aims to be that go-to restoration services provider in all of Arizona. If you are located anywhere in The Copper State and need any help with a range of services such as water or flood damage restoration, fire or soot restoration, mold remediation, asbestos abatement, storm damage repair, sewage cleanup, general cleaning, remodeling, or renovations, give us a call. All of your needs will be met by professionals with decades of experience restoring properties that have seen all kinds of damage possible."

The company has an easy-to-understand 6-step water damage restoration process that ensures a thorough and precise job on every site that they visit. The first step is when the customer calls the company, alerting it of their emergency. The company's professional technicians will then arrive at the site to inspect and assess all the potential areas of damage. They will then focus on removing any water that is logged in the main structure to prevent any further damage to the property. The company then uses industrial-grade drying equipment to remove all moisture trapped within the walls and surfaces of the building that is undergoing restoration. All the water retained by the building materials is removed to reduce the chance of mold damage. The company will then perform odor removal and deodorization treatments to clean the property's walls, flooring, furniture, upholstery, clothing, and other personal items. Finally, as the last step of the process, the company's contractors will perform repairs such as replacing drywall, installing new carpet, or performing major reconstruction of various areas to restore the property to its original condition.

Apart from Phoenix, Dry Star Restoration also extends its services to nearby cities in Arizona such as Mesa, Chandler, Gilbert, Tempe, Scottsdale, Tucson, Casa Grande, and any other surrounding areas.
