Bronx wrongful death lawyer Samantha Kucher releases a new article (<https://www.rrklawgroup.com/wrongful-death-lawyer/>) discussing wrongful death and wrongful death claims. The lawyer mentions that it can be troubling if a loved one's death is caused by someone else's negligence. A death that was caused by someone else's negligence can send a family into emotional and financial turmoil.

According to the Bronx wrongful death lawyer, "The death of a loved one is difficult enough, but adding significant financial burdens on top can make it overwhelming. Fortunately, the law provides for certain surviving family members to seek wrongful death benefits from the person responsible for their loved one's death."

The lawyer adds that seeking wrongful death benefits can help cancel the expenses from the victim's injuries, funeral, burial arrangements, and can also help make up for other financial losses caused by the untimely death of a family member. She adds that no amount of money may be able to make up for the death of a loved one, but wrongful death benefits may help ease the financial burdens of such a loss.

Attorney Samantha Kucher explains that a wrongful death claim is a claim that seeks a monetary award for damages the at-fault party caused the victim's family members. She adds that family members are left with the responsibility of carrying on, both financially and emotionally when someone dies because of someone's negligence.

In the blog, the lawyer also enumerates the most common causes for wrongful death claims. These include car accidents, truck accidents, bicycle accidents, premises liability accidents, medical malpractice, work-related accidents caused by company negligence, and criminal acts such as homicide and assault.

Additionally, attorney Samantha Kucher also explains the difference between wrongful death and criminal prosecution. She says that wrongful death is a civil lawsuit that seeks compensation for a victim from the at-fault party, while a criminal suit seeks punishment for someone who has broken the law.

Lastly, the wrongful death lawyer emphasizes how important it is for someone to seek the guidance of a skilled lawyer when it comes to wrongful death claims. Having an experienced lawyer may be able to help the victim's family receive compensation for their loss.
