Riverside, California - February 09, 2022 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

EHRC Web presents a new report that analyzes how gun violence can be reduced. The report was compiled by the company's experts and released amid the rise in gun violence. The article was published on EHRC Web's website to highlight the need to take active measures to stem the rise in gun violence.

In the United States, gun violence is a public health crisis. Gun violence is more than mass shootings. As a result of easy access to these weapons, gun violence takes lives every day in the form of interpersonal conflicts that turn fatal, suicides, and unintentional shootings. Each year, guns kill an average of 35,000 U.S. citizens, 96 people each day. This publication aims to address the serious issue of rising gun violence in the US.

According to EHRC Web, the report was produced after in-depth research by their experts. The primary focus of the report is on the steps we can take to reduce gun violence. The new article further sheds light on the importance of gun control for reducing gun violence. The report was published as part of their regular research on law and human rights.
