New York: Page Kits presents a new guide that explains how to use SEMrush for paid search. The guide was compiled by the company's web developers and IT experts and published on Page Kits' website to highlight the use and utility of SEMrush in digital marketing campaigns. The full guide can be found here.

The process of developing a paid search campaign includes keyword research, ad group creation, search ad development, and bid management. Marketers commonly prefer SEMrush's tools to assist them at various stages of their digital marketing strategies. This publication aims to help marketers understand the use of SEMrush for paid search.

According to Page Kits, the guide was produced after in-depth research by their experts. The guide's primary focus is on the use of SEMrush tools for carrying out paid searches. The new article further sheds light on the functionalities of SEMrush tools. The experts in the guide explained how digital marketers could benefit their campaigns by using SEMrush for their SEO reports. The guide was published as part of their regular research on web development.
