

Tony Wright and Game Improvement Golf Will Present At The First Golf Science Lab Motor Learning Virtual Summit

November 02, 2015

November 02, 2015 -

Oak Ridge, Tennessee - The first Golf Science Lab Motor Learning Virtual Summit will go live on Monday November 16, 2015. During the Summit, leading experts will reveal to golfers how to effectively learn, practice, and perform to play their best.

The Summit will bring together more than 10 golf improvement experts with cutting edge knowledge and experience. Some of the speakers include top 50 instructor Michael Hebron, renowned motor learning researcher Dr Tim Lee, #1 teacher in Colorado Trent Wearer, and many more.

Tony Wright from Game Improvement Golf will be one of the featured presenters at the Summit. He will talk about 'Optimizing Golf Learning Potential through Custom Club Fitting.' He will discuss how elements of custom driver, iron, wedge, and putter fitting can help golfers improve their skills and lower their scores.

The Golf Science Lab Motor Learning Summit is designed for avid golfers, competitive professionals, golf coaches, golf instructors, and anyone interested in learning more about the science of motor learning.
