Trash Junkies offers an all-inclusive service, which in practice means that customers may expect the company to haul away nearly all types of junk or debris. The company advises their community to avoid attempting to move large amounts of junk by themselves, even to their front yard and so on, since it is easy for an individual to suffer an injury while moving heavy items or overexerting themselves in this manner. Instead, they should rely on Trash Junkies' experienced team of junk haulers to do all the heavy lifting and moving for them.

The company points out that this is particularly true for older residents or those with health issues. While it may seem to be a relatively simple task, a strained back or aching joints can be difficult to recover from. Trash Junkies team, however, knows how to limit any risk to themselves as they carry out their work, and their expediency is partly why many consider them to be the premier, licensed and insured junk hauling service in Mentor, Ohio. If a homeowner or business has to wonder whether their junk needs to be removed by a professional, the company suggests they use a few simple metrics to come to a decision. For one, the items in question must be junk ? whether recyclable or not. Any items the customer wishes to throw away and never see again will qualify. Second, many customers prefer to call a professional when they have more junk than they can personally get rid of in one or two trips. This also includes items that are simply too heavy for them to move easily at all, such as washing machines, refrigerators, hot tubs and so on.

In their time, Trash Junkies has helped customers get rid of mattresses, construction debris, yard waste, furniture, sheds and even the contents of playgrounds. In certain cases, customers may also require help cleaning out an entire property, such as removing trash from every room in a house. The company is pleased to offer their assistance here as well, and customers need not take the added step of moving the junk outside. Trash Junkies will arrive onsite and handle it all.

Any new customer need only check the company's reviews for insight on their work ethic and attention to detail. Andrew W. says on the company's Google profile, "The folks at Trash Junkies were prompt at communication via email after making a quote request on their website. They provided a fair quote after sending them pics of all the items that were to be removed and provided same day service. They were on-time to the appointment made and were very efficient at removing all items. They were very friendly and personable, and I would strongly recommend them to anyone seeking junk removal."

Notably, the company boasts a solid 5-Star rating on this platform. While they are proud of the positive feedback they receive, however, Trash Junkies encourages their community to get in touch if they have any constructive criticism to share that may help them improve their services even further. When they arrive, they will swiftly examine the junk in question and provide a quote. If the customer agrees, the company will then proceed to remove it all.
