Junk Rescue was founded not just to serve like any other junk removal company. It is the belief of the founders that all materials should have a use and then should be reused. If reuse is not possible, then the used materials will have to be broken down into their basic components and then recycled or composted. Their vision is a company that is like a rescue squad looking for that junk that could still be rescued from getting to the landfill. In other words, they are a company that is aimed at helping achieve a zero waste society.

Those who are interested in learning more about the services provided by Junk Rescue can check out their website at <https://www.junkrescue.com/>, or contact them on the telephone or through email. They are open from 8:00 am to 5:00 pm, from Monday to Saturday.
