Chicago, Illinois - March 08, 2022 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

MeetPositives.com wants to point out that positive singles, or those single people who have been diagnosed to be positive for a certain sexually transmitted disease (STD), can better pass the time during the COVID pandemic by dating other positive singles. The Meet Positives website was designed to offer a way for positive singles to meet other positive singles for the purpose of possibly having a long-lasting relationship. The main benefit offered by Meet Positives is to allow positive singles to avoid the high risk of rejection and embarrassment that they have frequently encountered when the person they were dating discovered that they are STD positive.

Studies have indicated that somehow, the perception of time for some people has become distorted as a result of the COVID pandemic when people experienced lock downs and/or quarantines. This is the result of the sameness of each day, combined with the lack of routine. In the UK, it was observed that over 80 percent of people have noted some changes to the way they perceived time passing during lockdown compared to before the pandemic. Mental health professionals have pointed out that social isolation, alarming news, and constant worry and stress about the possibility of losing one's job, have cause the months of pandemic protocols and guidelines to appear like monotonously unpleasant periods of time without milestones and therefore are not remembered properly. Without milestones, the perception of the time became skewed.

Michael Task, a representative for MeetPositives.com, says, "Built for STD positive people, Meet Positives is an alternative to dating and a second chance for positive people who live with a sexually transmitted disease. Our goal is to help impacted people feel normal again in a relationship. And during the pandemic, what better way to pass the time and experience significant milestones in one's life than by dating? And with the possibility of rejection and embarrassment eliminated, positive singles can explore the possibilities offered by having someone with whom one can share life experiences."

There are several things that differentiate Meet Positives from other communities with the same goals. These include the fact that: it is the number one trusted STD dating site; they offer STD dating advice; their algorithm offers accurate matching; participation in an STD community where one can get online dating tips and more; and the use of methods that are better than those offered by STD personal ads and conventional dating sites.

The Meet Positives website serves as a dynamic private STD dating platform where members are given the chance to become acquainted with other positive singles who fully understand their situation giving them the confidence to date normally without being afraid of getting rejected as a result of their condition. Meet Positives can be used to discover friendships and dates, and possibly, long-lasting relationships and romance.

Positive singles who are interested can join the Meet Positives community where they are allowed to use the database of profiles to search for someone who is compatible with them. The community also has the goal of providing positive singles with a way to discover that person with whom they can establish a long-lasting personal relationship. The platform provides a discussion forum where members can get some idea on how to look for someone and create and nurture relationships. Members can also post on the online forum some advice to help others, especially those who are new.

With over 20 years of matchmaking experience, Meet Positives has a Trust and Safety team who have cultivated a good reputation. Starting in 2019, Meet Positives has functioned as a stand alone dating site for positive singles. However, it is not comparable to other STD communities in that Meet Positives does not belong to an affiliate network. Meet Positives serves community members on its own to make sure that members are able to enjoy the benefits offered by the community.

People interested in knowing more about the Meet Positives community can check out the Meet Positives website, or contact them through the telephone or via email.
