Maid Service Direct, a professional home cleaning company based in Philadelphia, PA, has posted an article on its blog site that describes the cleaning required after a home renovation. It?s possible that the homeowner or property owner had not been expecting such a large amount of cleaning work after the renovation. However, depending on the contract between the homeowner and the renovation company, the responsibility for the cleaning after the construction project may actually fall on the shoulders of the homeowner. Many homeowners end up getting surprised because they assume all contractors clean up after they complete the construction job. What homeowners fail to consider is even though contractors cleanup after the job, the quality of the clean my not be up to the standards of the homeowner.

It is important to note that cleaning after a major home renovation is actually different from regular home cleaning job. Thus, getting the services of a professional home cleaning service may be the best option for this situation since they have significant experience in post renovation cleaning projects and they have the appropriate equipment and supplies for handling the post renovation cleaning job.

A post renovation cleaning project is not just required to bring the house back to its normal state. It also has other advantages. For one, eliminating all that excess dirt and dust will make sure that the home is safe for the whole family. If people regularly breathe in the dust, this could result into a number of health problems. The problem with the excessive dust is that they can reach all parts of the home. The post-renovation cleaning crew will need to ensure all areas have been cleaned, including cabinets and drawers. If not, the dust that is left can easily transfer to other areas of the home, which is a health risk for members of the family.

And it is important to make sure that all air vents have been cleaned and that all air filters have been replaced. Dust can easily get caught in these air vents and filters and if not removed will get recirculated with the air and get distributed to the various rooms of the home. The clean up team will need to remove the air vents and wash them with soap and warm water to ensure that no dust or dirt will remain. And any exposed air filters will have to be replaced with new ones. It may even be necessary to arrange for a duct cleaning service.

And it is also vital to make sure that the floors and windows are thoroughly cleaned. If there are carpets, carpet cleaning must be performed. And the windows will need to be cleaned both internally and externally. Homeowners will need to ensure that the home cleaning crew will carefully clean the windows since these tend to attract a lot of dust and dirt.
