Sleep apnea affects millions of people in the US and hundreds of millions around the world. It is important for people living with this condition to seek medical help. However, the use of sleep apnea products such as sleep apnea machines can improve their quality of life by making their nights better. Anyone who suspects that they have sleep apnea can have a sleep apnea test at home courtesy of Insurance Covered CPAP.

The company recently said that they now have at-home sleep apnea tests that are aimed at giving people an easier way of finding out if they have sleep apnea.
