November 05, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Home and Garden America, a business in Carson City, NV, is proud to announce that they are using their survival seeds as a way to celebrate Christmas. Up to December 25, 2015, customers will be able to purchase the seeds at a discounted price, enabling them to celebrate as well. The seeds also make a fantastic Christmas present for those who are interested in surviving.

"Our seed packet contains 105 heirloom seed varieties ready for planting," says Chuck Harmon from Home and Garden America. "Customers will receive a $10 discount when they enter the coupon code AI5JR6AG at the final checkout page on Amazon.com. We strongly suggest that they copy and paste the coupon code to avoid typos."

Various experts agree that the Home and Garden America survival seeds are an essential addition to the stock of any long term survivalist. It has been demonstrated time and again that having a seed bank is vital to the survival not just of individual people, but to the planet as a whole. It is by keeping certain seeds that it can be guaranteed that the plants actually survive overall.

Meanwhile, more and more people are struggling to decide what to buy for people who already have it all when Christmas is just around the corner. These survival seeds are the perfect option. "We live in a consumerist society nowadays, so survival seeds actually make the perfect Christmas gift," adds Chuck Harmon. "Even if someone is not a survivalist, giving them seeds so that they can grow their own vegetables makes for a fantastic gift. After all, it can help contribute to the sustainability of our planet overall."

All the seeds included in the package are easy to grow and come with full instructions on when and how to sow and harvest. They have been very well-received by those who have purchased them to date. "Great variety of seeds here," says Aaron T. "I've written a 72-hour emergency preparedness book before and used to run a website about gardening in tough times. Long did I wish I could get a seed pack like this one. It's basically one big bag with several little bags of a huge variety of plants. We expect good things in my house come spring and summer."
