March 15, 2022 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Bryter Water Damage Restoration is providing the best services for water damage restoration Houston, Texas, has to offer.

Recently, the National Weather Service in Houston declared March 7 to March 11 to be "Severe Weather Awareness Week". This initiative was an attempt to make Houston residents aware of the dangers that harsh Texas weather can bring to its largest city and to hopefully get them prepared to withstand the damage that is imminent when strong winds and hurricanes hit the region. This is especially important this time of the year as the notoriously dangerous Texas summer and hurricane season is almost upon Houstonians. There is just enough time for homeowners to get their ducks in a row and book an appointment with a contractor that can help repair their home and prepare it for the onslaught of wind and water.

During "Severe Weather Awareness Week" each day of the week from March 7 to March 11 was dedicated to focusing on one weather safety topic that Texans face regularly almost every year. Monday was reserved to discuss heat safety, Tuesday was for thunderstorm safety which includes preparations for lightning, hail, and wind, Wednesday was tornado safety day, Thursday was when flood safety was talked about, and finally, Friday was for getting people aware of beach safety.

However, despite the education efforts of the National Weather Service over the last few days and their attempts to get Houstonians to bolster their home's defenses against hurricanes, there will be homes that are not ready to bear the brunt of the worst of what nature has to offer in Texas. Those homeowners will most likely be stuck trying to find a contractor that can fix the damage that the incoming hurricanes will undoubtedly leave in their wake. As many homes will be caught in the storms, this means that homeowners will be scrambling at the last moment to find a reliable water damage restoration expert that can provide a complete restoration solution for their property. When homeowners are looking for the best water damage restoration Houston has to offer, there is no better company to turn to than Bryter Water Damage Restoration of North Houston.

Bryter Water Damage Restoration provides services such as water damage restoration, storm damage repairs, flood damage cleanup, fire damage restoration, water extraction, fire & smoke mitigation, reconstruction, mold inspection, and mold remediation in Houston. Whether the home is suffering from the aftermath of flooding due to faulty plumbing or an act of God that tore into it from above, the company's rapid-response hotline is available 24/7 to offer assistance in any emergency, including plumbing leaks.

A spokesperson for the company talks about the services it offers to residents in Houston by saying, "If you have been living in Texas for a while now, the memory of Hurricane Harvey and the rampant destruction that it wreaked on the residents of the Lone Star State must be imprinted in your mind. More than 48,700 homes were affected by Hurricane Harvey throughout the state, including over 1,000 that were destroyed, more than 17,000 that sustained major damage, and approximately 32,000 that sustained minor damage. If you were caught in the havoc, your home might have suffered from the effects of the Category 4 winds that put Hurricane Harvey tied in the first place, along with Hurricane Katrina, as the costliest tropical cyclone to hit the country. Even a minor weather event can cause significant damage if your home hasn't been updated or maintained for the last few years. If your home happens to get damaged again this coming hurricane season, make sure to give the experts at Bryter Water Damage Restoration a call. We will show up and restore your home's interior and exterior to its former glory at a reasonable cost with the best customer service in all of Texas."
