March 28, 2022 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Chesterfield, VA based Commonwealth Waste Solutions would like to remind the residents of Glen Allen to take advantage of the upcoming spring season to make sure their septic systems are in good working condition. The waste management company has a number of tips to offer which can help homeowners prepare their septic tanks for the year ahead. Inspecting a septic system during the transition between spring and summer can help ensure that the tank is ready for the rest of the year. Visit the company's profile at <https://goo.gl/maps/hXbRAbAUZht> for more.

The first tip is to inspect the septic tank and drain field for any damage or clogging. Damage to a septic tank is often obvious enough for even the average untrained individual to notice, and if any damage is found, the next step is to contact a professional to deal with it. Second, homeowners are encouraged to flush out their septic tank in order to remove built up solids. Over time these solids can clog up the system and cause problems, but they can be avoided by flushing out the tank regularly. Another step that can be taken to ensure that a septic tank is ready for the new season is to add bacteria which can help break down waste. This can be done by adding a septic tank additive or having the tank professionally cleaned.

Commonwealth Waste Solutions also advises homeowners to keep vehicles and heavy equipment off their septic system. Driving or parking on a septic system can damage it, which will likely lead to expensive repairs. Too much rainwater can also damage a septic system, which is why homeowners are encouraged to find ways to divert water away from their tank and drain field. Finally, Commonwealth Waste Solutions encourages homeowners to pump out their septic tanks on a regular basis. It is usually enough to get it done once every three years, and this spring is an excellent time to do so.

Commonwealth Waste Solutions can help with any and all septic tank-related issues. They offer inspection, repairs, pumping and more. Whether the tank needs to be pumped to remove built up solids or if the customer needs help diverting rainwater away from the septic system, Commonwealth Waste Solutions has the tools and expertise needed to do the job.

In Glen Allen, Commonwealth Waste Solutions is the preferred waste management company for many residents. With their highly qualified, well trained staff, the company has handled any and all kinds of waste related issues for years, and the experience they have amassed has made them confident in their ability to deal with almost anything.

A number of Glen Allen homeowners have left great reviews of the company on their Google profile and other platforms. Nathan says, "Commonwealth pumped and inspected our septic system prior to us moving into our home eight months ago. Last night, our system clogged up, due to using too many flushable wipes, I would later discover. So, in a panic, I called a 24-hour company that wanted to charge me a lot of money to come re-pump my system. I waited to call Commonwealth until this morning. Jason walked me through several scenarios over the phone. After following what he had told me to do, my system is now flowing again! Excellent customer service, and they saved me a ton of money, too! I highly recommend this company. Thank you, Commonwealth Waste Solutions!?"

John similarly says, "I would definitely recommend using these guys. Extremely professional, good communication and timely. They spent extra time with me educating me about my septic system and making recommendations. Calls were returned promptly, and all the staff I dealt with were very courteous."
