March 21, 2022 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

California: Senior Strong presents a new report highlighting technologies that could redefine elderly care in 2022. The report was compiled by the company's health and senior care experts and released amid the global tech boom. The article was published on Senior Strong's website to highlight the role of innovative technologies for elderly care. The full report can be found here.

The pandemic has impacted everyone in various ways, more noticeably senior citizens. With care facilities being either locked down or having severe restrictions in place to protect the elderly, families have been split apart. This has impacted the seniors more, and it can lead to severe mental health implications on elderly patients while also impacting the healthcare facilities for these patients as well. This publication aims to address the difficulties in delivering healthcare to these patients.

According to Senior Strong, the report was produced after in-depth research by their experts. The report's primary focus is on the technologies in 2022 that are transforming senior healthcare. The new article further sheds light on the use and utility of innovative tech like AI, Virtual Assistants, wearables, telemedicine, and robotics for senior care. The experts in the report explained how these technologies improve healthcare services. The report was published as part of their regular research on technologies for senior care. For more information on senior care products, readers can visit their page: <https://www.seniorstrong.org/bathtubs/>.

“Technological advancements have enabled healthcare services to be available to all regardless of lockdowns, restrictions, and other circumstances. The publication analyzes which new technologies can help seniors and how they work to improve their quality of life,” said William Rivers, founder and senior editor of Senior Strong’s website.

Since the company's launch, Senior Strong has provided an extensive library of online resources on financial handlings, insurance, legal, and estate matters. The senior care advisor aims to help seniors, their caregivers, and their family members to learn more about senior care by delivering information, advice, research, reviews, comparisons, analyses, and practical tips on senior care products, assisted living, and senior care. It also features packages, benefits, events, activities, and discounts available exclusively for senior citizens.
