The most experienced auto accident attorneys are aware of the fact that the at-fault party?s insurance adjuster can go to any extent to give the victim less than what they deserve. In Georgia, a settlement is not required, explains The Mabra Firm, adding that courts engage both parties to have a ?settlement conference? to discuss the possibility of the car accident claim. Mediation is also an option, which involves both parties and their lawyers and a third-party mediator to discuss a prospective settlement.

accident is $18,417, and for property damage, it?s $4,525. The blog post cautions victims against opting for a personal injury lawyer that tells them the worth of their case without investigating it, adding, ?Unfortunately, those estimates can be wildly different from reality. This often leads to distrust of the claims process or the injury lawyer helping with your case.?

The top personal injury lawyer in Atlanta begins with determining the negligent party and collecting evidence. Investigators will come up with their version of what happened during the accident and assign liability. The blog post warns that there is a chance that the negligent driver?s insurance company or an injury lawyer can twist accident reports around to place blame on the victim.

The Mabra Firm emphasizes the importance of working with an accident attorney in Atlanta to tell the victim?s side of the story. Atlanta personal injury law firms employ their own investigators to ensure that the at-fault party is held fully responsible.
