Santa Clarita, California. NFTOrbitor.com has released a report on the new NFT launch by Gucci. With this launch Gucci is increasing its presence in the NFT and metaverse space with several collections and a land purchase inside The Sandbox

High-end luxury fashion brand Gucci launched a collection of NFTs that outfitted existing NFTs in new clothes. Gucci launched the 10KTF Gucci Grail collection with digital artist Wagmi-san. The NFTs were revealed earlier this week and show NFTs from 11 existing well-known NFT collections now outfitted in new clothes, providing a unique take on NFTs and intellectual property rights.

Gucci encourages fans to purchase NFT?s from the 10KTF Gucci Grail as holding a 10KTF Gucci Grail could also provide an additional utility with future drops and items on the 10KTF roadmap connected to the project.

?We expected other high-end brands to see the success and warm reception that the Gucci NFT?s received from their community and follow suite with an effort of their own,? stated Raul Meza, Content Editor at NFTOrbitor.com. ?This is good for the whole NFT and fashion industry as it will also encourage new, up and coming designers to enter the NFT field. That is what Defi is all about. Leveling the playing field so that the little person can compete with the big boys in their respective space.?

The collection also shows how owning NFTs can lead to additional monetization opportunities such as creating an entirely new collection and upgrading already owned NFTs. This is good news for the online industry as well as investors who are always looking for new and creative ways to pad their portfolios with.
