

The Doodle Dynasty Announces New Report On How To Make An Unruly Goldendoodle An Owners Best Friend

March 31, 2022

SANTA CLARITA, CA - March 31, 2022 -
Santa Clarita, California -- Thedoodledynasty.com has released a report on how to make an unruly goldendoodle an owners best friend. The report goes in detail with several tips that goldendoodle owners can use at home to help them with their goldendoodles misbehavior.

?When formally training their goldendoodle to complete specific skills like sitting or shaking hands on command, most people work with them in long spurts of time,? states Raul Meza, breeder at The Doodle Dynasty. ?This is a mistake because just as humans can grow bored or even angry when being required to complete one monotonous action after another, so can goldendoodles. It?s better to work in short slots of time interspersed throughout the day.?

In their report, The Doodle Dynasty goes on to share several other tips and recommendations that have helped their previous clients curve their goldendoodles mischievous behavior. They also reinforce how important lifelong training is to maintain solid behavior. Studies have shown that goldendoodles do not stop learning after puppyhood and by reinforcing good behavior, goldendoodle?s often tend to become well-behaved.

The report goes on to highlight the preference of positive reinforcement through treats and praise instead of negative reinforcement through yelling and punishment.

?We decided to list several techniques in our report that we found easy to apply and that families will find very effective,? states Meza. ?Our goal is to help families realize that even though there is no real shortcuts to raising a healthy and well behaved goldendoodle, spending time teaching them can actually be fun for both parties involved.?
