The Ductless Directory Stresses Importance of Hiring the Right Ductless Contractor

June 08, 2022

SAINT PAUL, MN - June 08, 2022 -
The Ductless Directory, a national ranking consumer resource for finding ductless contractors, wants to stress the importance of hiring the right ductless contractor. In fact, this is more important than choosing the brand, model, or pricing, because everything becomes better with the well experienced and knowledgeable contractor. Furthermore, the ductless heat pump is becoming more and more popular because with just one unit, it is possible to cool or heat the home and provide the desired comfort in addition to having an improved indoor air quality. To ensure that the ductless heat pump will be working properly and the family will enjoy its full benefits, it is vital to hire a certified ductless contractor.

Michelle LaFrance, Founder and CEO of The Ductless Directory, says, ?Most homeowners fail to recognize the key role that the HVAC contractor plays. It's significant, as a matter of fact, its hands down the first and most important decision to make when considering going ductless. A skilled contractor will make all the difference in the world. It's more important than brand, model or price. Get the contractor right and you'll be well on your way to great home comfort and greater savings.?

Homeowners have been performing searches for ductless more frequently and are often flooded with offers from online wholesalers. In addition, some homeowners mistakenly believe that they can do the ductless installation themselves. Unfortunately, ductless can never be a DIY project because there is a high risk of something going wrong in the hands of someone who is inexperienced with ductless, whether a contractor or the homeowner. Furthermore, the manufacturer may void the warranty of the unit if it is not installed by a professional HVAC contractor.

Michelle LaFrance explains, ?Every ductless installation is a custom installation. It's not a one-size-fits-all solution. This is where many homeowners waste time and waste money... they mistakenly treat it as a price game. They're going to be disappointed.? She adds, ?If you want to get all the benefits that the ductless system has to offer, you want to make sure to start out on the right foot. A qualified contractor will start by asking the right questions and assessing your home's unique situation??

Hiring the right ductless contractor means checking on a number of things before getting the services of a particular contractor. The first step is to ask for the contractor?s credentials and check if he is a Factory Authorized Dealer with extensive training from the manufacturer of the brand they recommend. The contractor must have extensive experience in ductless installation. Third, it is also important to check on the contractor?s reviews and referrals. And fourth, it is vital to ensure that the contractor is trained in repair and maintenance of ductless systems.

Choosing the right ductless contractor will take care of three things. First, the contractor will match the right ductless to the customer?s home environment. Second, they will make sure that it is correctly placed. And third, they provide the appropriate professional installation.
