April 20, 2022 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Los Angeles, April 2022: Score LA presents a new guide that advises small businesses on reducing their electric bills. The guide was compiled by the company's business experts and released amid the rise in electricity rates in the US. The article was published on Score LA's website to highlight the need for small businesses to save costs on electricity. The full guide can be found here.

Over $60 billion is spent by small businesses on energy every year in the United States. Cutting costs remains a top priority for small businesses. To maximize profitability, entrepreneurs must generate maximum revenue at a minimum cost. Every company's electricity consumption adds significantly to its costs. This publication addresses the rising concern of small businesses incurring hefty energy bills.

According to Score LA, the guide was produced after in-depth research by their experts. The primary focus of the guide is on ways to reduce electric bills. The new article further sheds light on the alternatives to electricity that can help small businesses reduce their energy usage. The experts in the guide explained six key steps for reducing electricity bills. The guide was published as part of their regular research on business and finance solutions for small businesses.
