Revival Soy shakes for menopause relief have been getting rave reviews from customers who report being delighted with the product?s taste and texture while also appreciating its health benefits, especially women who have been through menopause.

The Revival Soy products were formulated by Dr. Aaron Tabor who needed a way to help his mother who was fighting menopausal discomforts. He hit the books and soon found out that Asian women did not face the harsh effects of menopause. This was primarily attributed to the Asian diet which is rich in soy. His preliminary findings were backed up by subsequent research over the decades that isoflavones and saponins, some of the many naturally-occurring phytonutrients in soy, were responsible for providing most of its health benefits including reducing menopause hot flashes and night sweats. Along with its benefits for women going through menopause, soy is also known to provide support for weight loss, increased energy utilization, healthier skin, hair, and nails, heart disease risk reduction, and more. The doctor eventually managed to perfect a concentration process that extracted the most beneficial parts of soybeans while excluding their bland taste and chalky texture. The company now manufactures several products including shakes, protein bars, and chips, that encapsulate the goodness of soy while providing buyers with multiple options and flavors.

Revival Soy?s protein shakes are designed to be smooth and creamy. They are offered in several tantalizing flavors such as Vanilla Pleasure, Chocolate Daydream, Strawberry Smile, Cappuccino Comfort, Just Peachy, Strawberry & Banana, Banana Blessings, and Blueberry Blush. A single serving of soy shakes is naturally concentrated to provide approximately the same quantity of proteins and isoflavones as about 6 cups of typical soy milk (20 grams of soy protein and around 160 milligrams of soy isoflavones). The shakes are also available in low-carb versions for those who are watching their weight and need a diet-friendly option. Most of the soy shake flavors are available in 3 sweetener options - Fructose, Sucralose, and Unsweetened. The shakes are gluten-free, lactose-free, kosher, vegan, and have a clinically proven low-glycemic index. The soy used to make the shakes is genetically pure soy (non-GMO) with certified isoflavone levels. All the flavored shakes contain at least 600 milligrams of bone-healthy calcium to help reduce the risk of osteoporosis. They also meet the FDA's criteria for heart-healthy soy foods.

The company?s website is full of testimonials from customers who have noticed real benefits in their lives due to regularly consuming its soy shakes. One such review from a buyer who experienced relief from her menopausal hot flashes says, ?Revival Soy has made me feel years younger! I started with hot flashes last November and many mood swings. After using Revival Soy for 3 weeks, they have totally gone away. I am not exaggerating. I have not had a single hot flash. I used to go outside in the dead of winter without a coat just to cool down! My family was suffering because the house was too cold for them. I have shared your info with all I encounter that have similar problems. Thanks so much.?

Another customer who was recommended the use of soy products upon reading a popular healthcare book says, ?I am menopausal and was told so when I was only 40. After reading Dr. Christiane Northrup?s ?Wisdom of Menopause?, I was convinced that Revival was the way to go. Now, after drinking shakes for over a year, I have gotten a handful of people using Revival (including one man!). I feel so good about passing on the good feeling to others! I have lost weight, reduced menopausal discomforts, and improved my well-being overall. Many, many, thanks.?
