The Virtual Magician Experience is The Future of Entertainment. With Zoom, Webex, or Microsoft Teams, one can now experience live online magic in virtual events. The new virtual magic developed by virtual magician Jon Finch makes it possible for companies to boost morale and enjoy a personalized zoom magic show at home with just their computer. Virtual magician Jon Finch has been performing as a zoom magician illusionist and mentalist since March 2020, which led him to create this new way to make magic more accessible than ever before. With online virtual magic, it's not just about watching a virtual magician perform. The audience are really inside the virtual magic performance. With online magic a virtual magician can reach audiences all over the world who may never get a chance to see some of their favorite magicians like David Copperfield or Penn and Teller.

A zoom magician can predict what celebrity an audience member is thinking of. The virtual magician can PIN codes, real or imagined. The virtual magician can correctly guess a thought-of playing card. A great virtual magician can even reveal the name of the first person someone kissed. The best virtual magician can even know what words audience members are thinking of from books they pick from their own bookshelves!

And the virtual magician does all this online magic wizardry on screen without resorting to camera tricks. Plus, unlike an in person magic show, at the virtual magician show, everyone has a front row seat, so the audience see the magic up close. Zoom magician Jon Finch can even personalize his bespoke performance to fit the company's brand and message.

To date, virtual magician Jon Finch has performed his misdirection, sleight of hand, card tricks, online magic mentalism mind reading, and magical illusions for such Fortune 500 companies as Cisco, Goldman Sachs, Microsoft, Google, Amazon, Netflix, Showtime, Walmart, and LinkedIn.
