

Image SEO King Competition Crasher Raising Image SEO Game

April 29, 2022

April 29, 2022 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

The competition began when an SEO mastermind challenged members to rank an image in the Google SERPs in 24 hours. Word of the contest leaked out. Then several rogue SEO professionals crashed the event by launching their own initiatives. The recent launch of the Image SEO King website caught the attention of contest organizers.

One of the party crashers is Honey Witcher - the owner of imageseeking.com. "Our arrival onto the scene has not gone unnoticed," she said. "It is common for SEOs to 'model' each other's strategies. Now we will have to be a bit more aggressive to challenge the Image SEO King title."

Historically, SEO contests have gotten more aggressive as the deadline approaches. The Image SEO King contest is no different. Everyone is trying to get their images ranked as quickly as possible. The competition has struck a nerve with the SEO community. The level of interest is high.

"It is a bit like an arms race," said one observer. Evolution like this is how progress changes SEO. "Every time someone uses a new technique, someone else has to develop a countermeasure."

One method gaining popularity is to use Google's products against it. YouTube and Google sites are both owned by Google. So many SEO professionals have been using them to rank their images.

"We were going to try a simple exact match website and a PR. But with everyone riding YouTube for quick rankings, it forces us to add that to our internet marketing mix," Honey mused.

Search engine optimization for images is not a frequent SEO focal point. SEOs prefer a mixture of content marketing or link acquisition to drive rankings. But with limited time, competitors have to use other methods to rank fast.

"24 hours is not much time. But it provides a venue to learn from some of the top SEOs in the world," Witcher said. "And who knows what might happen in the final hours!"
