New York, April 2022: Page Kits releases an online guide that explores the shades of brown for web design. The article, published on Page Kits? website, was produced by the company?s tech experts. The guide was released to aid web developers by examining the brown pallet for the website.

There are certain meanings associated with brown color palettes on websites. Symbolizing stability, steadfastness, and balance, brown is the color of the earth. Brown color palettes imply trustworthiness and friendliness, and they're also straightforward, so choosing one for your website is a good idea. If used in a web design scheme, brown conveys a sense of wholesomeness and calm. If that?s what a brand needs to communicate, it can use a brown color combo for the website. This guide was designed to provide an in-depth examination of different brown shades popularly used in web design.

According to Page Kits, their experts conducted thorough market research to compile the guide. The publication aimed to explore the different brown shades by describing each of the 55 hues. The guide explained the representation of the brown color and its three main categories to give a clear understanding of how it can be used in web design.
