November 18, 2015 -

Only Provence, a real estate agency based in Los Angeles, CA, specializing in luxury villa rentals in Provence, France, is now offering homes for sale in Provence. Provence is a world-renowned region in France, known for its rich culture, natural beauty and mild climate. The company is now focusing its efforts on clients who are interested in spending more time in this particularly sought-after region in France.

"We have been offering a range of exceptional luxury villa listings for over a decade ? many of our clients not only fall in love with Provence, but with a specific villa they have rented. It is not uncommon for our clients to rent the same villa again and again. Now they have the opportunity to purchase some of these furnished properties.?"

Only Provence intends to offer one of the most extensive portfolio of listings in the area. Potential buyers will have a selection that includes renovated farms and country houses, properties that need renovation, and traditional village houses.

Only Provence is known for their customer service and does far more than simply offer property listings for those interested in buying. "We want to give people the full range of services needed when it comes to real estate for sale in Provence," adds John Dean. "Having worked in the villa rental arena for so many years, we have extensive networks of contacts in renovation, architecture, gardening, decoration - basically anything you might need to transform a home after purchasing in Provence. Furthermore, we are the regional experts in vacation rental properties for those who do not intend to live in Provence year round." Interested parties are encouraged to visit the Only Provence website to view listings at www.onlyprovence.com.
