Bluffton, South Carolina - Residents of Bluffton, Hilton Head, Okatie, South Carolina are in excellent hands as they get assistance from the area's top Dryer Vent Rerouting business, Ugly Duct Cleaning.

The locally-owned family company Ugly Duct Cleaning has learned from their experiences that dryer vents should be rerouted appropriately outside the home. The International Association of Certified Home Inspectors (InterNACHI) advises homeowners to place the end of their dryer vents outdoors, at least three feet away from a window or door. The company adds that improper vent rerouting can be a fire risk, limit airflow, diminish the proficiency of the dryer, and turn a home or establishment a breeding ground for molds.

On the other hand, Ugly Duct Cleaning says dryer vent rerouting can help reduce the risk of fire. It can also increase the dryer efficiency and bring it back to its optimum capacity. It can also prevent molds and mildew growth and eliminate the nasty smell at home.

Explaining further, Ugly Duct Cleaning says that professional help is necessary for performing the task. Only professionals must perform the task with the risk it poses. Additionally, dryer vent rerouting is mandated to adhere to building codes and the International Residential Code (IRC).

Ugly Duct Cleaning guarantees the Best Dryer Vent Rerouting Services professionals to assure client safety. Apart from dryer vent rerouting, the Bluffton, South Carolina-based firm also provides Air Duct Cleaning, Air Vent Cleaning Dryer Vent Installation, Dryer Vent Repair, and Dryer Line Replacement.

The local company is also devoted to quality service and a strong work ethic. "We are a team of experienced, qualified, talented, and polite air duct and vent cleaning technicians," they add. On top of that, the Ugly Duct Cleaning staff are all fully vaccinated. They likewise implement strict safety protocols at work.
