Be-Safe presents a new article that Guide On Crucial Safety Tips When Home Alone. The report, published on Be-Safe's website, was compiled by the company's safety and security experts. The report was released in light of the high home invasion rate in the US. Readers can find the full report here.

Living alone puts anyone at greater risk for dangerous situations like robbery or burglary. Statistics show that there are roughly 2.5 million burglaries every year, of which 66% are home burglaries. A similar scenario can ensue even if someone does not live alone but works from home every day or spends long periods of time home alone. The number of burglaries rises by about 10% between June and August, so this is crucial for people to secure their homes and themselves. The publication analyzes ways in which people can make their homes more secure and tips on how to enhance their overall safety when living alone.

According to Be-Safe, the company's experts compiled the guide after thorough research. The purpose of the publication was to simplify home security by guiding readers through the essential measures they need to keep in place. The guide described different preemptive security measures to understand how people can secure their homes clearly. The report covered security vulnerabilities around the home that residents need to be aware of. It also provided some guidelines on how to handle an emergency escape should in case of unforeseen circumstances.

Since its inception home and community safety advisor, Be-Safe has provided information, advice, research, reviews, comparisons, and analyses for helping people ensure their home and family safety, and physical and personal security. The report was published as part of their regular research on personal safety for their readers.
