Brooklyn construction accident attorney Samantha Kucher releases a new article (<https://www.rrklawgroup.com/construction-accidents-lawyer/>) explaining different construction accidents in New York. The lawyer mentions that construction accidents can cause serious injuries or even death. Any person within the construction area can be injured or killed, including employees, supervisors, and passersby.

"Recently the Occupational Health and Safety Administration (OSHA) conducted a study that discovered safety violations in approximately 66% of construction job sites in New York. The Complicated Situation Facing Injured Construction Workers If you were injured in a construction site accident in New York City, the situation you face could be more than a little complicated," says the Brooklyn construction accident attorney.

The lawyer enumerates the common types and causes of construction accidents. These include crane accidents, structural collapse, ladder accidents, scaffolding accidents, electrical accidents, unsafe/dangerous equipment, construction site falls, welding accidents, fires, and explosions.

Attorney Samantha Kucher states in the article that the general contractor could sometimes be the negligent party. It could also be the owner in some cases. There are times when both the contractor and the owner can be held responsible for any accidents that occur at the construction site.

In the article, attorney Kucher says, "If you were injured in a construction site accident in New York City, the situation you face could be more than a little complicated. In many cases, the accident might have occurred through no fault of your own."

Furthermore, the injury attorney discusses in this article how construction accident injuries are rarely minor and that even though the injury may seem like it, the individual should still seek the medical attention. A serious injury can leave someone without a job for several weeks or even months. In some worst-case scenarios, severe injuries can lead to death.

Lastly, the attorney emphasizes that it is important to have a skilled lawyer in cases such as construction accidents. An experienced lawyer might be able to help victims receive the compensation they need.
