May 13, 2016 -
Cojollo LLC, a business in New Windsor, NY, have announced that their brand new website is now online and available for those who require computer screen cleaning products, among others. The website, which can be found at http://www.cojollo.com, highlights the various Cojollo products and how they can benefit users. All Cojollo products are available for purchase through the website.

Laura Fannell from Cojollo LLC says: "Our new website looks absolutely amazing and we can't thank the design team enough. It clearly highlights our various products and it explains to people how they can benefit from these. Additionally, we have included a blog that includes articles featuring some of our products."

Cojollo's main product is the computer screen cleaner. It includes everything that is needed to get and keep a computer screen totally cleaned. One of the most popular elements of the product is the dust repelling spray, which ensures that the screen stays cleaner for longer.

It also includes soft microfiber cloth, onto which users can spray the product in order to clean their screen. They can then turn the microfiber cloth over in order to dry the screen. It is very easy and quick to use and leaves the screen dust and streak free. The cleaning liquid itself can last for several months and has no strange smell.

Those who have used the Cojollo computer screen cleaner have been full of praise. Several people have commented on the high quality of the product, and how beneficial it is to have everything of importance included in the product. Many have commented on how well the product works.

The new website has been designed to enable people to find more about the screen spray and more, in a secure manner. "We focus on developing innovative products and a five star costumer service," adds Laura Fannell. "The new site is completely safe and secure, and we have even included a shopping cart. Information is available not just on the screen cleaner, but also on our mobile phone mount."

People are encouraged to visit the new website to investigate the various products that Cojollo offers through the site.
