May 23, 2022 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

The National Black Business Pitch or NBBP is a one-of-a-kind competition that connects black-owned businesses with corporations who are seeking new products and services for their supply chain.

The NBBP empowers black-owned businesses to get in front of America's top corporations. These companies include major organizations such as Disney, Honda, Visa, Southern California Edison and more, and pitching to these companies can prove to be a game changing opportunity for business.

The sole purpose of the National Black Business Pitch is to support and help black-owned businesses, to get in front of major corporations looking to do business with minority business owners. Businesses have the opportunity to not only get in front of major corporations, but also enter to win up to 10,000 dollars.

Also, for all transparency purposes, there are no tickets to buy, or registration fees of any kind.

Over the course of two rounds, participants will be judged on quality, availability of resources and potential impact on an organization's bottom line.

Thirty businesses will advance to the final competition and the opportunity to win cash prizes of up to $10,000.

For the pitch, participants need to submit a three-minute video pitch about the company's product or service.

The unique video pitch will be seen by representatives of America's top corporations that are all looking to source products and services.

Sponsors of 2022's annual NBBP competition include executives from Fortune 500 companies such as Disney, Honda, Southern California Edison, Golden State Water Company, Pacific Premier Bank, Visa, MGM Resorts and others.

Last year, this annual event helped hundreds of black business owners get in front of major corporations, some of which have resulted in long-lasting partnerships that have flourished into success stories.
