Southwest Ranches is a suburban community that is a part of the Miami metropolitan area and is found on the eastern edge of the Everglades, 22 miles northwest of Miami, and 15 miles southwest of Fort Lauderdale.

In one of their most recent customer reviews, EPS received a five star rating from Gabriella V., who said, "This is the best company! Jessica is very professional and responsive and Greg is very honest and reliable. He came out quickly with his guys and made our yard look amazing! I am so glad I found them. I will be using them for all my lawn care needs and highly recommend them."

Irrigation and sprinkler systems offer a lot of advantages for gardens or landscapes, especially in sunny and hot locations like Southwestern Ranches in Florida. The first step they will take when providing irrigation services for a home or property is to perform a survey of the property. Greg O'Connell, co-founder of EPS Landscaping & Tree Service, says, "Once you agree to receive our irrigation service, we will send one of our irrigation specialists to your home or property to conduct a number of tests. Next, the specialist will subdivide the garden or area into various zones, depending on their water needs. This will ensure the proper placement of the irrigation and sprinkler systems."

They will then install lawn sprinkler systems, which will reduce the time spent on catering the lawn and garden beds. This is particularly vital in Southwest Ranches in Broward County where the grass and plants need to be watered regularly. To ensure that the design of the irrigation system is suited for the property and the lawn and plants, their specialist will design the system in such a way that the appropriate quantity of water is provided for the grass and the plants, thus avoiding the potential issues of over-watering or under-watering.

EPS can also provide lawn care or lawn maintenance. This ensures that the lawn is properly cared for to provide soft, green lawn that is not just attractive but also encourages the family to spend more time in the yard or garden. EPS experts will ensure that the lawn is watered properly, mowed regularly and correctly, and that the lawn grass is provided with the necessary nutrients.
