Portland, Oregon: Local home inspection company, Octopus Home Inspections is a full-service home inspection company serving the Portland area since 2015. In an effort to help potential homebuyers learn about the condition of the property they're looking to purchase, Octopus Home Inspections is now offering the most comprehensive Seller?s Home Inspection Services.

This new and all-inclusive inspection service covers every major component of a new home's structure and systems. It is conducted prior to listing a home for sale and can provide the seller with an accurate report of their property?s condition.

?We go above and beyond in our home inspection services in order to ensure that the home you want to buy has everything it promises to have,? says Chris Barry, a certified Master Inspector and owner of Octopus Home Inspections, LLC. ?We provide each client with a comprehensive written report, document our observations with numerous color photographs, and offer unlimited follow-up support to ensure all concerns you may have are addressed.?

Octopus Home Inspections, LLC is a member of the International Association of Certified Home Inspectors (InterNACHI), and all of its inspectors are certified through this organization. They are also licensed, bonded, and insured in the state of Oregon. Moreover, the company employs an entire team devoted solely to educating homeowners about the various features and maintenance required when living in a home.

Over the years, the company has built a reputation for being one of the most thorough and professional home inspection companies in Portland, OR. Trust, quality, and experience are the pillars that Octopus Home Inspections has built its business on, and they continue to stand by these values with each and every client they serve.
