Score LA presents a new report that explores business activity code for consulting. The report was compiled by the company's business experts and published on Score LA's website to highlight the importance of business codes for the consulting business.

Each business in the US must file federal business taxes using the Principal Business Activity Code for Consulting. Every business will have either a SIC code or a NAICS code. SIC and NAICS codes were developed by the US federal government for many purposes, but most importantly, to make statisticians' jobs easier. This publication addresses the need for businesses to get the right code for their industry.

According to Score LA, the report was produced after in-depth research by their experts. The report details the NAICS Code for Consulting Businesses. The new article further sheds light on SIC business codes for consulting. The experts in the report explained what these codes are and their use. The report was published as part of their regular research on professional business services. The full report can be found here; <https://www.scorela.org/business-activity-code-for-consulting/>.

?A business' industry code describes the types of products and services it sells as well as its target market. The publication analyzes NAICS and SIC codes for a consulting business. It helps consulting businesses understand business codes and assists them in determining which category they fall under by providing an overview of the different business codes,? said Chuck Parsons, Executive Director of Events and Marketing of Score LA.
