November 13, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

WGE Services, an office cleaning business in Austin, TX, has made it their mission to adhere to the highest of standards when it comes to commercial cleaning in any type of office or building. WGE Services has developed a brand new cleaning technology that is far superior to what they, and many others in the professional cleaning or janitorial business, have used before. With this, the office cleaning service in Austin has just entered the 21st century.

"We want to offer people the best cleaning technology available on the market today, at the lowest possible cost," says Cary Parven from WGE Services. "We do this by using microfiber and systematic cleaning, which gives the best possible results. And all the cost savings we have made through this are passed on directly to our customers."

The company offers full commercial cleaning in Austin. This includes medical cleaning, small offices, church and school cleaning, commercial cleaning, retail cleaning and floor maintenance. They do not offer one size fits all cleaning services, delivering a personalized package to each individual client instead. Interested customers are encouraged to check their website to make an appointment for a no obligation quotation.

The work that the company has been doing has been very positively reviewed by their many customers. "WGE is trustworthy and extremely dependable," says Michelle. "Marcos is very responsive to phone calls, emails and any special requests." Clients have also taken note of the fact that the company often uses new cleaning systems and that these always offer better results as well as a reduction in price.

"For us, the focus will always be on delivering superior results in an affordable way," adds Cary Parven. "When we introduce a new cleaning product or method, we always discuss this with the client, explaining why we believe it to be superior. This was also what happened with our new microfiber and systematic cleaning methods. We tested the methods first, found they worked fantastically and introduced them to our clients, while at the same time dropping our price."

Those looking for commercial cleaning in Austin, Texas, are encouraged to contact WGE Services as soon as possible. An appointment can be booked online for them to check out the property that needs cleaning.
