June 24, 2022 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Processing Card releases an online guide on recording credit card processing fees in QuickBooks. The article, published on Processing Card's website, was produced by the company's financial experts. The guide was released to aid businesses looking to keep track of their transactions by providing reliable information on using QuickBooks.

Accounting for credit card processing fees from merchants such as Stripe, Square, and PayPal is an integral part of accepting payments. The fees charged to high-risk merchants tend to be higher than the fees charged to low-risk merchants. The accounting process can be improved if you get an accurate picture of these fees. Online accounting software for small businesses, such as QuickBooks, helps companies manage these processes. However, QuickBooks can be confusing to those who are new to it. This publication was designed to provide a complete guide with detailed information on how to record credit card processing fees in QuickBooks.

According to Processing Card, their experts conducted thorough market research to compile the guide. The publication aimed to simplify the use of QuickBooks by guiding readers through how the process works. The guide explained the steps to use QuickBooks to help keep track of transaction fees. Readers can find the full guide by visiting their page: <https://www.processingcard.com/blog/how-to-record-credit-card-processing-fees-in-quickbooks/>.

Since the launch of its site, Processing Card has provided online resources and detailed research, reviews, analyses, and guides to assist businesses in the fast-paced digital world of business. It offers details of the best services and software for small business owners to choose from, according to their particular requirements and preferences. The guide was published as part of their regular research on payment processes and credit card processing.

“QuickBooks can present a bit of a learning curve to individuals who are unfamiliar with the software and the accounting profession. We hope to simplify the process of recording credit card processing fees for small businesses through this guide,” said Founder and CEO of Processing Card, Florence Carpenter. He believes small businesses and entrepreneurs need to be armed with all the information they need on the best payment processing solutions so they can pick what will work best for them.

In its effort to help individuals and businesses with their payment processing queries, Processing Card offers advice, aids, and practical tips on the best mobile processing apps and software solutions. It also discusses industry insights about the best processing services, merchant accounts, and comparisons to aid businesses in their decision-making within the world of B2B. The site also covers mobile payment processing, online payment processing, and high-risk processors.

“With our resources, we bring forward new ways to help people find the most suitable online payment processing solution for their business,” said Carpenter.
