DAVENPORT, IA - July 12, 2022 -
John Cornish - Mortgage Lender, based in Davenport, Iowa, wants to inform everyone that he can help home buyers, especially those who are first time home buyers, get the home they want with the VA residential home financing program. John Cornish is considered to be one of the experts when it comes to finding financing assistance for the purchase of real estate properties. He began his career of helping with home financing after he completed his degree from St. Ambrose University in 2003. Thus, he has accumulated an experience of over 18 years in home financing, allowing him to assist over 2,300 families in obtaining the financing they needed to purchase a home or for refinancing their home. He has already received more than 250 reviews on Google with an overall rating of 5.0 stars.

It is important to note that the VA home financing program can only be used by veterans, service members, and surviving spouses who are eligible. The US Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) is able to offer a home financing guaranty and other housing-related programs to assist veterans and those in active service when they want to purchase, construct, retain, repair, or adapt a home for personal occupancy. The funds for the VA home programs come from private financing companies but it is the VA that provides the guaranty, which allows the home buyer to benefit from the low interest rates, no down payment, no home financing insurance,

For those who are not qualified to benefit from the VA residential home program, they can consider the Federal Housing Administration (FHA) home financing program. This program is aimed at helping low- to moderate-income families in buying a home for themselves. This home financing deal is insured by the federal government and is provided by a bank or a financial institution that has been approved by the FHA. A key benefit of the FHA home financing program is its lower minimum down payment compared to other home financing providers. Furthermore, those with lower credit scores also have a chance of getting approved.
